Results of storm

Library workers assess damages following storm

Staff members Tuesday began to survey damages in the basement of Morris Library after Monday night's storm.

In the Learning Resources Center, where the force of water even moved desks, some video tape recorders and cameras were waterlogged. Approximately 2,500 mounts for transparencies that were stored in boxes on the floor were also ruined by the water. The full extent of damages has not been determined.

Down the hall in the education library, two inches of water covered the floor and ruined carpeting in the offices in this department. About 50 historical children's books were set up on tables to dry Tuesday after they were retrieved from boxes on the flooded floor. Most of the books can not be replaced because they are 17th and 18th century copyrights.

The textbook service lost about 250 general studies textbooks that were stacked along the south wall in the basement. The water damage was not extensive but staff members had not completed inventory.

In the Morris Library Auditorium, carpeting on the stage and in the aisles about four rows back was still soaked Tuesday and the room smelled very musty from the flood waters.

A layer of mud on the mechanical room floor waited for the mops of custodial crews who were busy pumping the elevator shafts and cleaning a part of the Learning Resources Center Tuesday. A breakthrough in the steam tunnel swept the mud into the room during the storm.

The only area relatively untouched by the water was the Reserve Reading Room. There was no damage to property but there had been a little seepage of water into the room.

Gus says he thinks the storm did some damage to his apartment, but neither he nor his landlord can tell for sure.

University Center, Library sustain damage from storm

By Cathy Blackburn
Staff Writer

Water, wind and lightning swept the SIU campus late Monday night and caused an undetermined amount of damage in Morris Library and the University Center.

Shortly after the storm began, water buckled a steel door at the northeast corner of the library basement flooding the elevator shafts, the Learning Resources Center, the education library, the mechanical rooms, the steam tunnels and parts of the Morris Library Auditorium and the Textbook Service. There was a small amount of seepage into the Reserve Reading Room.

A University Center, water flooded the north section of the basement which contained the University Bookstore supplies and the campus telephone exchange. A backed-up sewer in the sidewalk in front of the north entrance to the Center also forced water into the first floor at this location.

According to a spokesman at the Library, the force of the water after it buckled the door was strong enough to move office-sized desks. Water in different sections of the basement level measured from two inches to two feet. In the elevator shafts, there was about five feet of water.

Later Monday night, water also forced its way into the Library mechanical rooms from a steam tunnel running under the building. This breakthrough deposited a layer of mud on the floor of the mechanical room and flooded the education library with two inches of water.

Custodial crews at the Library worked all Monday night mopping up the water and were pumping the elevator shafts Tuesday. None of the elevators in the Library were in use Tuesday because of the flooding but all departments in the basement level were still operating. According to Vernon Biggs, chief custodian at the Library, it will be several days before all the damage is repaired. The extent of damage was still undetermined.

At the Center, about two inches accumulated in a 50-foot by 40-foot area of the basement. It has all been vacuumed out but a layer of mud and silt still must be cleaned up. No estimate on the amount of damage to Bookstore supplies has been completed yet. The telephone exchange was not harmed by the water.

In formal hearing . . .

Board calls for legal action

The Carbondale Fair Housing Board recommended Tuesday that the city take legal action against a local landlord on a charge of violating Carbondale's Fair Housing Ordinance.

In a formal hearing, the Board heard the complaint made by Gerald W. Zimmerman, a SIU graduate student, and his wife Barbara. They stated that following an April 4 visit by a black student, Darryl Norton, their landlord, Paul Maloney, told them in a heated discussion that he did not want blacks in his apartments.

The Zimmermans were living in an apartment owned by Maloney at 410 W. Oak St. They moved out voluntarily on the night of April 4, following Maloney's instructions on visitors.

Efforts for an informal reconciliation hearing failed and the formal hearing Tuesday was the next procedural step.

Approximately 50 people attended the hearing including

Dwight Campbell, student body president, and Richard Wallace, vice president.

Maloney was present at the hearing but his attorney advised him to refuse to answer questions put to him by board members because of possible future court action.

The Fair Housing Board will present their recommendation to the City Council which will decide on any court proceedings that might be initiated by the City Attorney.

To aid in vocational program

Graham to leave for Nepal

Jack W. Graham, SIU professor of higher education, will join an SIU team helping Nepal develop its vocational education program, Dean John O. Anderson of the Division of International Services has announced.

Graham, who heads the College Student Personnel Graduate Studies program in the higher education department, will leave late this month with his wife, Sofie, and their children, Mark, 12, and Karen, 8, for Kathmandu, capital of Nepal, where the children will enter an English-speaking school operated by the U.S. Agency for International Development. He will undergo a period of orientation in Washington, D.C., prior to leaving on the two-year assignment.

The University, under contract with AID since 1966, has helped train vocational teachers in the areas of agricultural, trade and industrial, home science, and secretarial education to work in Nepal's multipurpose high schools. The program also has assisted in upgrading vocational needs of business, industry, government, and community.

Graham will be a research and measurements adviser assisting with the general evaluation of student progress in the school system. He also will work with the further development of student personnel services at the National Vocational Training Center at Kathmandu. He said he will work with a former SIU student, Prem Sharma, who returned to Nepal in June after studying a year under Graham in the student personnel program.

Graham, who came to SIU in 1951, has served as University dean of students, as coordinator of Undergraduate Academic Advisement and coordinator of the Counseling and Testing Center on the Carbondale campus. He has a Ph.D. degree in student personnel work and psychology from Purdue University.

Book award to McCoy award

For the second time in a week, Ralph E. McCoy, director of libraries at SIU has been singled out for an award for his book, "Freedom of the Press: An Annotated Bibliography."

The American Association of Law Libraries was meeting in Houston today to award him the Joseph L. Andrews Bibliographic Award for 1968-69, presented annually for "a significant contribution to legal bibliographic literature."

On Friday McCoy received the Scarescrow Press Award from the American Library Association at its meeting in Atlantic City.

VTI library program to begin fall quarter

VTI will offer a two-year Library and Technical Assistants program leading to an associate in arts degree beginning fall quarter.

The program is designed to train library and audio-visual technical assistants to perform specialized library duties such as book processing, repair and binding and inter-library loan and acquisitions work. Public services, data processing and audio visual courses will also be included in the curriculum.

Robert E. Birkhimer, head of the Morris Library Order Department, said, "The purpose of the program is to train technical assistants who are badly needed to bridge the gap between fully-trained professional librarians with graduate degrees and clerical personnel who usually have no outside training."

Birkhimer said that the need for library technical assistants is great in both public and school libraries. In a recent study, it was estimated that 80,000 library technicians are currently needed in the United States.

Students enrolled in the program will attend classes on the Carbondale Campus and Morris Library will be used for laboratory sessions. Members of Morris Library's professional library and audio visual staff will assist in the teaching.

The curriculum will consist of 97 credit hours divided between courses in general studies, instructional materials and library technology. The second year program provides for practical experience in library and audio visual work through internships which will be served in Morris Library and in public libraries in the Carbondale area.

In the past, the procedure of training technical workers has included in-service training. However, the method of on-the-job training has been costly and not very effective, Birkhimer said.

About 50 other Library and Technical Assistants programs are offered in the United States. Students interested in the program should contact Birkhimer in Morris Library's administrative office.

Southern Hills to offer movies on Tuesday night

Free movies are being shown each Tuesday night at the Southern Hills outdoor theatre courtesy of the Married Students Advisory Council.

The movies start at dusk and all married students and their families are welcome, according to Lee Chenoweth, staff assistant in the office of Commuter, Married and Graduate Students. In case of rain a decision will be made to show the movie in Recreation Room 128 or postpone it until the following evening.

According to Chenoweth, the production costs run about $400, which is paid for from the family housing fund.

The following is the schedule of remaining films for the summer: July 8, "For the Love of Mike"; July 15, "No Time for Sergeants"; July 22, "The Three Worlds of Gulliver"; July 29, "The Wackiest Ship in the Army"; Aug. 5, "A Raisin in the Sun"; Aug. 12, "Road to Rio"; Aug. 19, "3:10 to Yuma."

Registration dates set

The SIU Counseling and Testing Center has announced registration deadlines for examinations to be during the months of July and August.

Graduate students taking the Educational Testing Service foreign language exam must register today. The exam will be given on Saturday, Aug. 2. July 3 is the final registration date for the National Teacher Exams, which are to be held Saturday, July 19. The graduate English exam will be given on Saturday, July 12, and those interested must sign up by July 7.

For information concerning the National Teacher Exams, contact the Counseling and Testing Center. For details on the foreign language and English exams, contact the graduate school.

Why fight it-war is useful

"It is futile to attempt to abolish war. Men always have fought. They always will fight, because it is human nature to fight," said Sylvanus M. Duvall in a pamphlet article called "War and Human Nature."

Look in any world history book at the library and there can be found numerous sections devoted to war. It does not have to be this way even though war is so prevalent in society. The idea that man thrives on war and enjoys reading about it produces these books and articles on the subject.

In the world today and in the future, man will always have enough to write about, for war will probably exist until man ultimately destroys himself. This can be seen somewhat by the war statistics of the first half of the twentieth century. Since 1898 there have been 128 conflicts, 73 of them since 1948, and 45 of those 73 have occurred between 1958 and 1967 (U.S. News and World Report).

But this is an excellent record since there is good that comes out of war (although men die and lands are destroyed). War seems to be an excellent way of settling differences between nations. Remember how war settled the quarrel between Japan and the U.S.

The "peace-loving" U.S. has fought, on the average, one serious war every 25 years since the government was formed.

Another advantage of war is that unexpected "benefits" might develop, even if you lose the war. Thanks to World War II, West Germany and Japan enjoy democracy and a high living standard. It only cost Germany 3,500,000 battle deaths and a mere 1,219,000 battle deaths for Japan. Not much of a price to pay for freedom.

Thanks to war, medical advances, discoveries and business stimulation are made. Thanks to the millions who have died in previous wars, the casualties of today's wars can be treated with more skill. Thanks to the men who made World War II possible, atomic energy was discovered. And, finally, thanks to all governments for making war possible so that business and the economy could boom.

Although partially a learned process, fighting is still a matter of human nature, just as it is human nature to eat with a fork, go to ball games, drive automobiles and play checkers.

So war is really not that bad if one does not mind sacrificing thousands of lives to make the world a better place for the next generation—if the world still exists then.

GS program needs to be revised

To The Daily Egyptian:

On page five of the June 24th Daily Egyptian, graduating seniors rightfully criticized the General Studies program. The principle for which it was created was very reasonable, but the mode of application is not workable. Each department tries to present an intensive basic course and succeeds usually in alienating the students from the subject.

One senior advocated combining courses to "cut down" on the GS program. This is being attempted in some of the science departments and is failing. Why? Because a Ph. D. in a very specialized science is not usually able to properly teach a "core" course. Team teaching would seem to be the answer, but for some unknown reason this was ruled out.

In the large university environment, many professors are hired for half-time teaching and half-time research. It would seem to follow that both would be evaluated, however great the emphasis is on research and publication. Since the route to higher pay and promotion is through publication, it often follows that education suffers on the freshman and sophomore level. A disinterested or even bitter instructor in a General Studies course with lectures of 250 students, does not usually serve the best interest of education.

A solution could be to create a new "College of General Studies" with the power and budget to hire and coordinate their own staff. Emphasis could be entirely on teaching introductory courses to a large number of students. The faculty of such a college would be more efficient in several ways:

- Active instructor interest in teaching general courses for non-major and pre-major students.
- Offices and administrative personnel working under the same roof for better interdisciplinary communication.
- Other departments would be freed from the burden of teaching GS courses.

● Specialized teaching techniques for dealing with crowded lecture situations could more easily be implemented.

President Morris in a recent television interview said that changes in curriculum and programs require several years to implement. This may be true, but the General Studies program at SFU began in 1962 and it is in many ways less than successful. The changes that have taken place in seven years have been minor and involved little more than changing course names and credit hour allotments. The administration, faculty and students who believe that minor changes will truly improve the program have lost sight of the primary goals of the program. If General Studies could be administered and taught by people who understand it and believe in it, then significant improvement would surely come.

Today's youth becoming 'wintertime soldiers'

By Dick Gregory

One of the most gratifying aspects of being either a syndicated columnist or a presidential candidate is seeing your ideas take root and grow in the minds of those who have a somewhat different social and political orientation than your own. I have frequently expressed my feelings about campus unrest and the deep moral commitment reflected therein. And I have tried to pinpoint the futility of repressive measures suggested by college officials, including a recent hard-line policy adopted at Notre Dame University.

Not long ago this column suggested that ROTC military training on campus should be replaced with a four-year Peace Corps elective course. Students electing such a course would be eligible for federal loans to assure their higher education and would be required to render foreign and domestic service after graduation.

Speaking in my hometown at the commencement exercises of St. Louis University, the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of Notre Dame, outlined a similar program. Father Hesburgh proposed that the federal government should assure education beyond high school to all young people seeking it, but that in return it require from each a year of national service "to others needing help." Participation in the program should also be offered as an option instead of serving a military obligation, Father Hesburgh further suggested.

To those who would oppose any substitute to regular military service, Father Hesburgh said: "There are many ways of being patriotic besides military service, however honorable that is. We take the draft as the standard and only form of obligated service, but for about 90 percent of our national history there was no draft."

And to those who would oppose assured higher education as too costly, Father Hesburgh suggested that such expenditure would be "more than recovered by the future income taxes of those so educated, who would likewise be removed forever from the world of welfare and frustration."

At least three cheers are due the president of Notre Dame for recognizing the deep moral commitment and humanitarian obsession of today's youth, although Notre Dame policy for handling student unrest does not reflect that same recognition. Father Hesburgh's St. Louis commencement address included these words: "A new and imaginative national program that will give our young people a legitimate outlet for their deep concerns would be worth more than a thousand techniques of riot control." Father Hesburgh further urged a national commitment which would "put the emphasis on opportunity rather than repression, on real answers rather than improvised palliatives."

Of course repression is always the attempted strategy of those who fear real answers. When the real answers make it clear that those of wealth and power will have to divest themselves of certain privilege, the privileged will try to suppress that truth through devices of repression. But the repressors will always be resisted by the morally determined "wintertime soldiers." And more and more of today's youth have joined the ranks of that army. There seems to be a direct correlation between those who resist the draft and those who voluntarily enlist in the army of wintertime soldiers.

The wintertime soldier is the man who struggles for truth, freedom and dignity when all odds are against him. George Washington headed a band of wintertime soldiers. He inspired them to march on Christmas Eve against the British in spite of overwhelming odds. George Washington used the words of Tom Paine to give strength and courage to his wintertime soldiers. Those words echo today as an ode to freedom and truth for all men everywhere. And those words seem to capture the mood of young people today as they confront a system of repression and oppression.

Tom Paine said: "These are times that try men's souls. The summer soldier and the sunshine patriot will, in this crisis, shrink from the service of their country, but he that stands it now, deserves the love and thanks of man and woman. Tyranny, like hell, is not easily conquered; yet we have this consolation with us, that the harder the conflict, the more glorious the triumph. What we obtain too cheap, we esteem too lightly. If there be trouble, let it be in my day that my children may have peace. It is dearer only that gives everything its value. Heaven knows how to put a proper price upon its goods; and it would be strange indeed if so celestial an article as freedom should not be highly rated."

'The Alchemist'

Rehearsing their roles for the upcoming Southern Players Summer Stock Company production of "The Alchemist" are Linda Kay Thompson, Haller Laughlin, right and Arthur Burns. The play will be staged in the Communications Building at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Monday.

'The Alchemist' opens Friday

By Dean Rebuffoni
Staff Writer

The third production of the season by the Southern Players Summer Stock Company, "The Alchemist," will be performed at 8 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Monday in the University Theater of the Communications Building.

"The Alchemist," a comedy written by English dramatist Ben Jonson in 1610, has been given a decidedly 1969 atmosphere by the Southern Players. Directed by Christian Moe of the SIU Department of Theater, the timeless play is an expose on the gullibility of mankind.

The play will have a tough act to follow; the first production of the summer season by the Southern Players, "Black Comedy," was an exremely funny play. Performed with the morbid "The Two Executioners," it was popular with SIU theaterfans.

Playing the title role in "The Alchemist" will be Haller Laughlin, of Baltimore, a doctoral fellow at SIU with an impressive string of credits to his name.

Laughlin has acted in such television series as "East Side, West Side," "Route 66," and "Search for Tomorrow." He has also performed in Hollywood, with parts in the movies "Splendor in the Grass," "Love With A Proper Stranger" and "Masque of the Red Death."

In addition, he has appeared in the Broadway productions of "West Side Story," "A Man for All Seasons" and "Bye, Bye Birdie," and has been in the resident com-

Congressmen get 'junk' mail

WASHINGTON (AP) — Shirts, beans, peanuts and tea bags are giving congressional mail the characteristics of CARE packages.

The clothing and food flowing into Capitol Hill offices are taxpayer attempts to dramatize anger over pocket-book issues: wages and taxes.

Long time staffers say the offset mail recalls a "Bundles for Congress" campaign touched off 27 years ago by a congressional pension bill.

The latest bundles began arriving during debate over the proposal to raise the pay of senators and representatives from $30,000 to $42,500.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen, R-Ill., commented while arguing for the bill that he once had to pick up a $177 restaurant check after a luncheon for President Nixon and congressional leaders.

"All I need is beans and bacon to get by," Dirksen said, "But I want to perform the social amenities and do my job as well as I can."

It wasn't long before his mail contained little cellophane bags of Navy beans.

Rep. H.R. Gross of Iowa, who opposed the raise, received cans of beans bearing notes asking they be forwarded to Dirksen.

Gross also got boxes of old clothing. "Here's the shirt off my back," said one note.

The pay raise bill passed. In May the National Postal Union registered its dissatisfaction with a scheduled pay raise it considered too meager.

Congressmen received cellophane bags containing two peanuts and the message: "Nuts to 4.1 per cent."

The latest mailbox campaign was inspired by Republican Rep. John P. Saylor

Storm damage assessed

The Physical Plant was surveying the damage at other areas on campus Tuesday and will present an estimate on the extent of property damaged by the storm sometime today. The spokesman at the Physical Plant also said there had been damage to the penthouses in Schneider and Mae Smith Towers.

In Thompson Woods and other places on or near campus, many trees were felled by the force of the wind or split in two by lightning.

The rains also caused many storm sewers to back up causing flooding of streets and sidewalks. At the entrance of the parking lot in front of Morris Library, a three-foot deep pond was formed during the height of the storm.

Power failures were reported in the University Park complex during the storm.

Group seeks solutions to housing difficulties

The newly created student housing committee to help off-campus students resolve their housing difficulties is examining several approaches to the problem of the landlord-tenant relations, ranging from mild to extreme sanctions.

The committee, which consists of Mike Bowman, east-side non-dorm senator, Tom Bevirt, SIU Consumer Committee chairman and Greg Brown, an interested student, issued a statement Monday outlining several approaches to the problem.

The most extreme measure, according to the group, would be taken when flagrant violations persist and the landlord refuses to remedy the situation.

"Then, not only would that one living area of the landlord be placed off limits," said Bevirt, "but all of his houses and apartments would be declared illegal."

Strong city ordinances to protect tenants is another alternative proposed by the group. Provisions would include a mandatory listing of all damages to the living unit before a contract is signed, and making the landlord responsible for proving damages "beyond a doubt."

Another approach cited by the group is for the realtors and landlords of the community to draw up a code of ethics.

According to the committee, "this code should emphasize that landlords must follow city, state and federal laws in regards to housing."

Included in the code would be provisions to inform students of their legal rights and obligations, steps that could be taken when a dispute arises, and making the landlord prove, prior to placing a damage deposit, what items are damaged at the living quarters.

Other approaches being examined by the committee but which are considered to be less desirable, include students and residents of the community coming together to combat landlords.

But, the group points out, "while this approach might be effective, it does not lend itself to harmony and good relations that are really desirable in landlord-tenant agreements."

A more undesirable approach would be to make all students live in campus dormitory facilities. "But," the committee said, "this is clearly objectionable to a vast number of students who prefer a less restrictive private atmosphere."

"However," said one committee member, "this might be the best way to convince people that we mean business."

Prostitute writes of scandal

LONDON (AP)—Christine Keeler, titian-haired sex bomb whose night life rattled Harold Macmillan's Conservative government six years ago, is about to tell all—again.

Now 27, the girl who disappeared with British War Minister John D. Profumo at the same time she slept with the Soviet Naval attache, has painstakingly ground out, hunt-and-peck on a typewriter, her autobiography of those hectic times.

The prospect is pleasing to publishers, who were reported bidding for the 70,000-word opus. There may be considerably less joy among those who would like to forget.

Married for two and one-half months, then divorced and now a mother, Miss Keeler says: "I want my son to have my own account."

Her account takes the Tory party leaders apart and also slams the Labor opposition for helping to steam up the scandal, which some say actually led to Labor's triumph in the 1964 general elections. "I am perfectly frank about the facts, about myself—yes, I was promiscuous—and about other people," she said in an interview.

That would be dealing with what broke into the open in the early spring of 1963. Rumors spread that Christine, Mandy Rice-Davies and other girlfriends of osteopath Stephen Ward were, in fact, being hired out to men in top positions.

Dragged into it finally were War Minister Profumo, Soviet Naval Capt. Yevgeny Ivanov, Lord Astor of Cliveden and a half dozen others close enough to cringe but far enough away to find haven behind the libel laws.

Ward was tried for living off the earnings of prostitution.

Jerome library sought

When SIU was created by the legislature 100 years ago Charles W. Jerome was one of eight teachers selected for the faculty.

Today, family genealogists are seeking information concerning his descendants, and disposition of the Jerome library.

Clark Hibbard of Oklahoma City is conducting the search, in behalf of the Jerome family and the Onondaga Historical Association of Syracuse, N. Y. He wrote SIU saying the trail ended here.

University archives yielded the information that Jerome, a native of New York, graduated from McKendree College in 1852 and became a school teacher. He enlisted in the Union Army as a first lieutenant. After the war he was principal of the Bedford Seminary, at Shelbyville, Tenn., and came to Southern as a member of its first faculty.

Jerome was professor of Greek and Latin, and also served as the school's first registrar and business manager. He retired in 1890, after 17 years on the faculty.

The faculty member's father, William Jerome, was a well-known Methodist minister who moved West in the 1830's and died at Carbondale in 1865, according to Hibbard's research. It is the elder Jerome's library that the historical society and the family descendants are seeking to locate.

Clark Hibbard in Oklahoma City would appreciate any information.

Gillan to join SIU faculty

Garth Jackson Gillan of Kenmore, N.Y., will join the faculty of SIU in the fall quarter as an assistant professor of philosophy.

Gillan currently is assistant professor at Casius College, Buffalo, N.Y. He holds a master's degree and a Ph.D. in philosophy from Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, and is a graduate of St. John's University at Collegeville, Minn.

Gillan will replace Don Ihde, associate professor of philosophy at SIU, who will teach existentialism and recent European philosophy at New York State University, Stony Brook, N.Y. for 1969-70.

Admiral attends graduation; sees son graduate with honors

An alumnus of SIU returned to campus June 11 to see his son receive his degree from SIU.

Rear Admiral Joseph B. McDevitt, Washington, D.C., judge advocate general of the U.S. Navy, came to attend the graduation of his son, Paul K. McDevitt.

Admiral McDevitt was reared in Harrisburg, Ill., and attended SIU in 1936-38 before transferring to the University of Illinois where he received his pre-law degree in 1940 and his L.L.B. degree in 1942. He was awarded an honorary doctor of jurisprudence degree by the U. of I. in April.

Paul McDevitt, a graduate of Bishop Denis J. O'Connell high school, Arlington, Va., in the class of 1965, was a star athlete there and was voted the most valuable member of the tennis team in his senior year. At SIU he also has been an honor student and has participated in intramural sports. McDevitt has maintained a grade point average of 4.2 and has made the Dean's List four times.

He has received a National Science Foundation scholarship to study for his master's and doctoral degrees in economics at Tulane University in New Orleans.

Paul's older brother, Jeffrey, is a medical student at the University of Colorado, and a younger brother, Rodney, has just completed his plebe year at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, Md.

Admiral McDevitt was commissioned an ensign in 1943. He was appointed to his present post by President Johnson on April 1, 1968.

Higher Ed Board backs campus disorder bills

CHICAGO (AP)—The Illinois Board of Higher Education voted Tuesday to support legislation to ban interference with the normal functions of colleges.

The measure, approved by both houses of the Illinois Legislature, has been sent to Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie. It provides fines and sentences for damage to property and injury to persons and disruption of classes.

The board gave its backing to the legislation during a brief discussion of so-called "punitive" bills aimed at campus disorders.

Later, after the board staff had given a factual report on the destruction by fire of the Old Main Building on the Carbondale campus of Southern Illinois University June 6, member Howard W. Clement returned to the legislation topic. He said, in that connection, the seriousness of disruptive action should be stressed.

"Arson," he said, "is a form of murder."

The report to the board made no mention of the cause of the blaze.

Arthur D. Browne, in his final appearance in the role of acting executive director, and Keith W. Smith, associate director, presented a report on cuts in educational spending plans made by the state legislature.

"This is a reduction below adequate funding," Smith said. "It can result, he added, only in 'qualitative or quantitative' cutbacks in programs.

Appropriations bills for operating money for the state universities, junior colleges, governing boards and the scholarship commission now add up to $429,651,551 for the fiscal year 1970. That was a slash of $35,460,625 or 7.62 per cent.

Appropriations for construction totaled $29,709,538, a rollback of $26,453,245 or 47.10 per cent, in new capital from the state's revenue.

Elizabeth II invests Charles as Prince of Wales in ritual

CAERNARVON, Wales (AP)—Prince Charles was installed as Prince of Wales Tuesday in a splendor of medieval ritual, unruffled by terror bombs of Welsh extremists. Then the 20-year-old future king, leaving ceremony behind, entertained some of London's most beautiful girls and their escorts at dinner aboard the royal yacht Britannia.

Queen Elizabeth II presented her son with a golden sword and ring and helped him don the ermine cloak and golden coronet of office while security men searched crowds outside Caernarvon Castle for those who exploded a bomb near the royal train carrying Charles to Caernarvon.

After the installation, Elizabeth and her husband, Prince Philip, left for London, leaving Charles completely in charge of the yacht. He dropped the pomp and circumstance of the historic investiture for an evening's relaxation with friends.

Lucia Santa Cruz, 25-year-old blonde daughter of Chile's ambassador to London, Victor Santa Cruz, danced with the prince.

The prince's other lady guests included Sibilla Dorman, 19, daughter of the governor general of Malta; and Lady Cecil Kerr, 20, daughter of the Marquess of Lothian.

During the ceremonies, thousands of Welsh people milled behind steel barricades outside the 700-year-old castle, cheering the prince and booing a youngster who threw an egg at the queen's gold-trimmed coach as she entered the fortress.

Police arrested two men and hustled them away from the angry crowd, which threatened a lynching.

Campus unrest bill killed

WASHINGTON (AP)—A wrangling and divided House Education and Labor Committee ditched efforts Tuesday to write a compromise bill on student unrest.

After weeks of stalling and parliamentary maneuvering, committee liberals first stripped and then killed legislation aimed at campus disorders.

Rep. Edith Green, D-Ore., principal sponsor of the bill, told the committee it had opened the way for "repressive and punitive" measures from the House floor.

The opponents won their first victory by knocking out a provision that would bar federal aid to colleges and universities lacking rules, regulations and contingency plans against disruptions.

The winning margin in the 19-16 vote was provided by three Republicans, Ogden R. Reid, N. Y., Marvin L. Esch, Mich., and William A. Steiger Wis.

The opponents argued the measure would be unnecessary because schools already are moving to meet student disruptions.

The bill was then entombed by an 18-17 vote in a subcommittee.

The action represented a victory for campus administrators, who oppose any new legislation. The Nixon administration also is against any barring of aid to schools hit by disorders.

Congressmen favoring a legislative crackdown on disorders will now be forced to add riders to appropriations bills. These bills expire after one year, but by then it is expected that congressional tempers will have cooled.

Marching Salukis to make fifth trip to Busch Stadium

SIU's Marching Salukis accepted their fifth straight offer Monday to perform as half-time entertainers at a St. Louis Cardinals home football game.

The Marching Salukis will be the last of three Illinois college bands to play in Busch Stadium during the season when they take the field Nov. 2 during the Cardinals-New Orleans Saints game.

The University of Illinois marching band will make its initial appearance at the stadium when it plays for the Cardinals' home opener against the Chicago Bears Sept. 28.

Western Illinois University will play for the Cardinals-Minnesota Vikings game Oct. 19.

The Marching Salukis' first appearance for the Cardinals came in 1964 at a nationally televised Monday night contest and the band has been a season regular ever since.

"We like to play the St. Louis games for two reasons," said Mel Siener, who shares direction of the band with Nick Koenigstein.

"First, we like to accept at least one outside offer to perform each year and we've found that the band members like the pro football games best, and second, we like the chance to get to sell SIU to the public."

Siener said he thought the Nov. 2 game would be a regional telecast.

Ashe advances to tourney semifinals

WIMBLEDON, Eng. (AP)—Arthur Ashe, of Richmond, Va., was the lone U.S. singles player left Tuesday as the All-England tennis tourney entered its semifinal round.

Ashe gained the semifinal round of the Wimbledon tennis championships for the second straight year, but Clark Graebner of New York was eliminated on a spirited comeback by Tony Roche of Australia, 4-6, 4-6, 6-3, 6-4, 11-9.

Ashe advanced at the expense of Bob Lutz of Southern California, 6-4, 6-2, 4-6, 7-5.

Rod Laver of Australia, the defending champion, moved up with a 6-4, 6-2, 6-3 conquest of Cliff Drysdale of South Africa.

The other spot in the semifinals was taken by John Newcombe, also of Australia, who downed Tom Okker of The Netherlands, 8-6, 3-6, 6-1, 7-5.

In the semifinals, Ashe will play Laver Thursday and Newcombe tangles with Roche.

On The Road Again

When the SIU Marching Salukis resume practice this fall, they will also be tuning up for their fifth annual appearance as half-time entertainers at a St. Louis Cardinals football game. The SIU band will appear on Nov. 2 at the New Orleans Saints game.

Greendale stopped in singles

SIU tennis player Chris Greendale lost out to Bobby Odasz of Puerto Rico in the quarter-finals of the North Atlantic Junior Tennis Championships in New York, Saturday.

Greendale, the No. 2 ranked junior in New Zealand before coming to SIU, has a personal mark of 14-3 this spring while helping the SIU tennis squad turn in a 15-2 won-lost record.

The North Atlantic championships are the first big tournament event of the summer and players from all over the country are participating.

It is run by the Columbia Tennis Club with financial sponsorship by Bulova Watch Company.

After leaving New York, Greendale will head for Louisville, Ky., where he will enter the National Clay Courts tournament.
